STAG Global

Classic Table Tennis World Cup

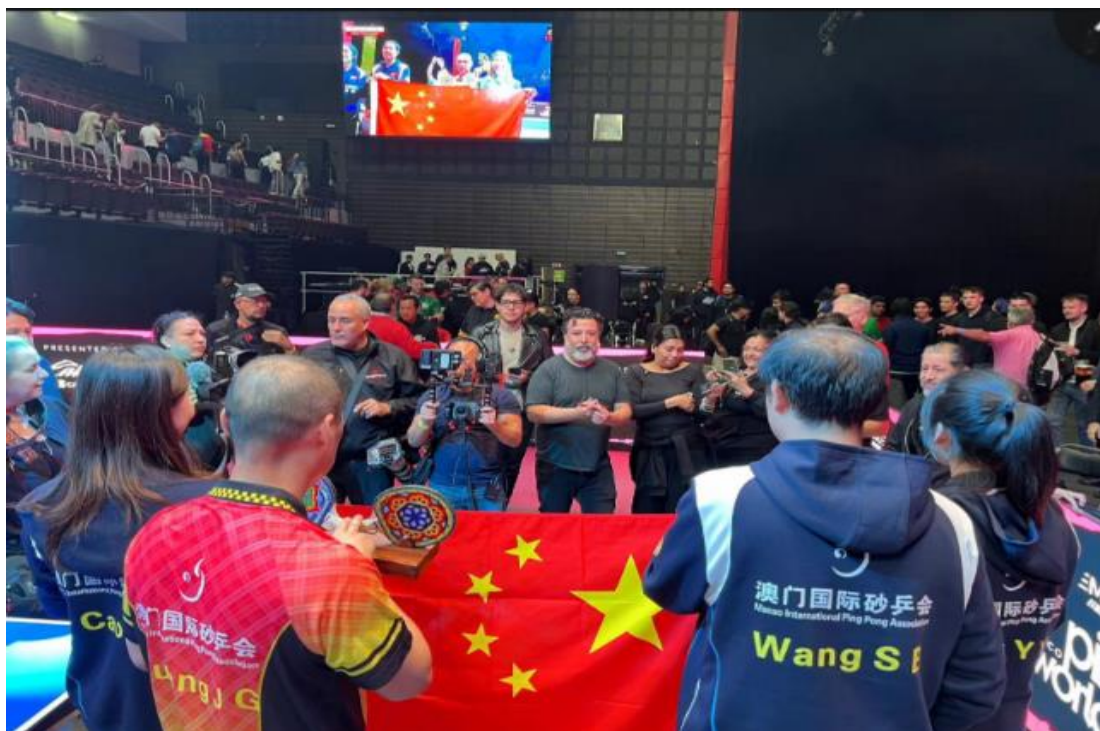

The STAG Global Classic Table Tennis World Cup (CTTWC) will kick off on January 8, 2025 at the Suzhou University Gymnasium in China and last for four days. The $50,000 CTTWC has highest prizes for the sand table, hardbat, and bare table open competitions are US $5,000 each. At the request of Steve Claflin, Chairman of the International Classic Table Tennis Federation, let me talk about why the Classic Table Tennis World Cup came to China.

At the beginning of the new year in 2024, I led the team to go on an expedition. It was also the first international exchange event after the Jiangsu Table Tennis Association changed its term. I met the organizers of this event, Steve Clafin, Miky Huidobro, Jimmy Shen, etc. in Mexico City. We were very close to each other. We are full of confidence in the future of Classic Table Tennis (CTT). During the event, we conducted a sports charity donation event, which enhanced our friendship. These should be one of the reasons why CTTWC can come to China. We hope to see the development of CTT, and we also hope to see people's emotional exchanges enhanced through sports exchanges.

At the Classic Table Tennis World Cup in Mexico City, our Chinese team won the two most valuable gold medals, the sand table tennis and hardbat open championships. China is the kingdom of table tennis, and like football in Brazil, it has a good mass base. In recent years, China has vigorously developed its sports industry infrastructure, and almost every city has world-class sports venues. This time in Suzhou it is expected that 300 Chinese and foreign players from about 40 countries will participate. Our first-class software and hardware conditions are a strong guarantee for the success of the competition. China has modern and excellent facilities, a long history and culture, and friendly Chinese people.

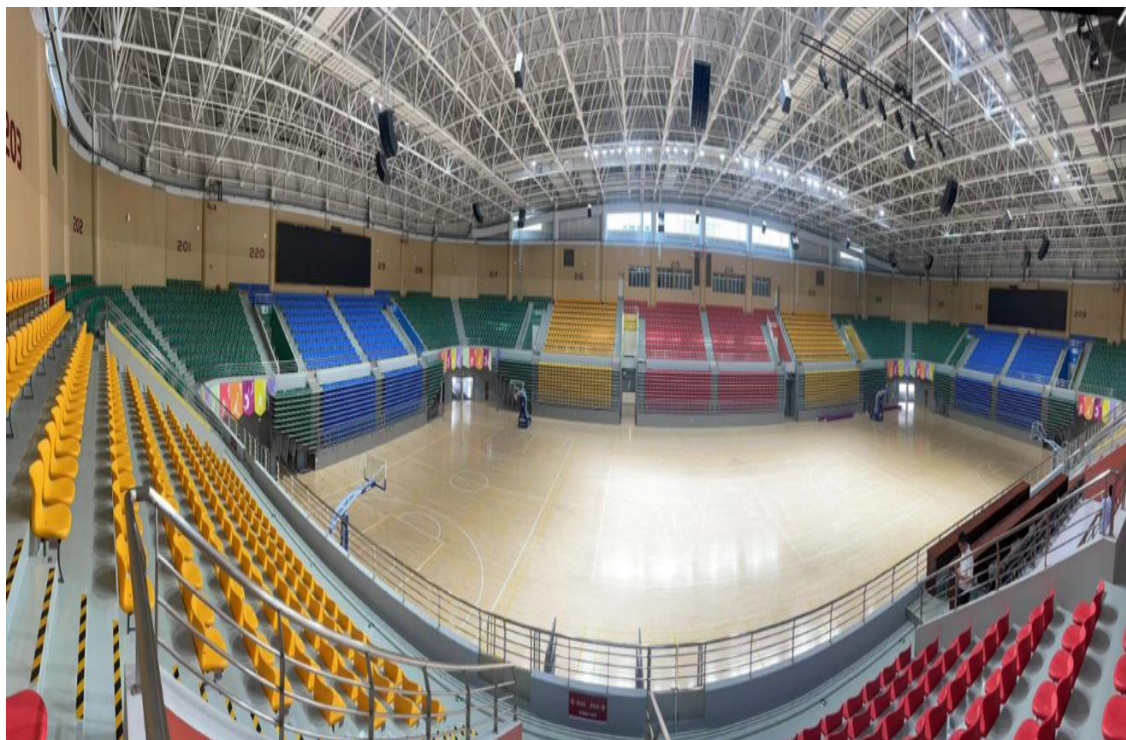

I want to express my feelings. I want to let the world gradually understand China through the successful hosting of this classic Table Tennis World Cup in China. Welcome opportunities for exchange and cooperation!

Enter China, and welcome more!
